Community Christmas Tree Was Held Thursday Evening.

The community Christmas tree in city hall Thursday evening was a successful venture for the city council and Woman's club. The members of the club recently stated in open meeting that they were opposed to placing trees on the lawn in front of the building. The Woman's club, which has generally, in part, conducted the affair, agreed with the council to the end that the tree was in the auditorium. H. D. McKeown led community singing for half an hour, after which well towards 1,000 packages of candy were distributed among the children. There were enough left over so that many received a second helping to the supply. The arrangements for the most part were in charge of Mrs. R. F. Bliss, president of the Woman's club. Mayor W. H. C. Shortt presided over the affair and explained its purpose, giving general directions for carrying out the plans.

The Magnesia Tale company of Waterbury reported this morning that their automobile had slid off the road between Waterbury and the plant in Moretown Dec. 17 and that a telephone pole was broken. Three other accident reports were received this morning at the secretary of state's office.

The state highway department has received from the war department a request for military trucks, to be used whether the department can use the state quota of army cook field ranges, also that there is a planimeter that has been shipped to the department for use in road construction.

The announcement that the annual meeting of the Vermont Bar association will take place at Montpelier, has been received by the attorneys who are members of the association.

The usual Christmas observance occurred in the Mt. Zion commandery hall at high noon Thursday, with some members attending. Among the speakers were Mr. Herriek, J. B. Estee and A. G. Eaton.

The police and telephone operators in Montpelier were made glad Christmas day by the receipt of several gifts in appreciation of the services of the departments.

Myrtle Ford, who has been employed by Bogie Brothers in White River Junction, will commence work the first of the year as stenographer in the office of the board of charities and probation.

Officer Frank Baldwin was called to the Victory hall on Northfield street about 9:30 o'clock Thursday evening because of some trouble that three young men were making. One of them "squared away" to meet Officer Baldwin, who piled the three men up in a heap in a corner of the room and then advised friends to take them home or they would go to jail. One of them, named Charles, appeared at the police station in the city hall and told a pair of stairs, making a further disturbance.

The dance given by the company of young men in city hall in Montpelier Thursday evening was not as largely attended as expected. It would have been, owing partly to the fact that some of the pastors in the city referred to this as no proper recreation for a holy day. Carroll's orchestra furnished music. Miss Marie Turner sang two selections. Miss Josephine Mitchell gave a dance. Mrs. Fred Laird, jr., gave two piano selections and C. S. Casavant of Burlington sang two baritone solos.

Dancing was in order until about 1 o'clock. The hall was well decorated. Word was received here Thursday that Cecil Moore was ill in a hospital in Cleveland, Ohio, with pneumonia.

Jessie Watkins has resumed her work in the insurance commissioner's office after two weeks' vacation.

M. C. Baldwin of Lanesboro was in the city today in connection with his duties as forester of that section of the county. He has found some nice spruce timber on the 6,000 acres of land recently purchased at the sale.

Mrs. Eliza Greenwood, aged 86 years, died at her home on Court street on Wednesday night following the break-up of old age. She was a native of St. Ours, P. Q., but had lived in Montpelier for a great many years.

Professor Mrs. William Miller, died recently, both of them having been in the hospital at the same time. Her nearest relatives are nieces and among these is Mrs. Raphael Lanier of Montpelier. The funeral took place at 9 o'clock this morning. Rev. P. J. Long officiating. Interment was in the Catholic cemetery.

Christmas was observed in Montpelier with fitting exercises in some of the churches. These included midnight service at the Episcopal church, with special music by the choir. The mid-night mass at St. Augustine's church did not occur this year, the custom having been discontinued for several years. The "national laboratory" foundation for invention and research is a logical product of these facts. The wonder is that it has not been established before. The laboratory, which was in the embryo stage for about two years, is to have its birth at a meeting in New York Jan. 9 which nearly 1,000 delegates are expected to attend. If there is any million-dollar philanthropist ready to help the thing along, it does not yet appear. Without disparaging such a source of encouragement to good causes it may be hoped that the 500 American leaders in science, research, invention and business, who are said to be behind the movement will be its real promoters. There ought to be enough co-operative spirit in this country to put through a great enterprise of this sort without reliance on the colossal private fortune of some retired captain of industry.—Springfield Republican.

A Babel of Tongues.
In the bureau of war risk insurance, Washington, D. C., skilled translators are employed to render into English a mass of incoming mail written in foreign languages and to translate into foreign tongues replies as required.

Forty-five linguists in the bureau translate and write 40,000 different languages. These translations into their own tongue are of great help to the dependents of service men in foreign countries. Letters written in the Italian tongue overwhelmingly predominate in the mail-receiving section. In August last the bureau received 41,000 letters in Italian, 46,000 in Spanish, 287 in Greek and 280 in French.

a hearing on the matter according to law will take place. The city sheriff, who is reported to have $6,000 on his books, was directed to make reports at each meeting of the council of collections between meetings. There will be no further decoration of the stage in the auditorium of the city hall by placing decorations in front of the several United States flags draped at the back of the stage. Criticism had taken place and recently the property committee endeavored to have this eliminated so that, upon motion of Alderman Bowers Wednesday evening, further decorations of the stage will cease. Considerable time was spent on next year's budget.

NATIVE OF ORANGE.

Mrs. Mary C. Cunningham Died On December 24.

Mrs. Mary C. Cunningham, aged 84 years, died at noon Dec. 24 at the home of Ernest Seaver in Washington. Mrs. Cunningham was born in Orange, the daughter of William and Sarah (King) Wilds, and was the last of eight children to pass away. Her early life was spent in West Tisbury, but on Nov. 27, 1918, she came with her daughter, Mrs. Viola Jeffords, to live at the Seaver home. Mrs. Seaver being her granddaughter.

For three years Mrs. Cunningham's health had been failing, but her death resulted as the effect of a shock. She was a woman well known and liked by the many friends and acquaintances she had made during her long life.

She is survived by her daughter, Mrs. Viola E. Jeffords, who has tenderly cared for her the past 11 years; a son, Charles E. Green of Lancaster, N. H.; two stepsons, Stephen and Frank Green of Lancaster; four grandchildren, Mrs. Ernest Seaver of Washington, Mrs. Clinton H. Beede of Epping, N. H., Roland and May Green of Lancaster, and one great-grandson, Lawrence Seaver of Washington.

The funeral was held this forenoon at 10:30 o'clock from the Seaver home in Washington, with burial in the family lot in the West Tisbury cemetery, where all the brothers and sisters are at rest. Rev. Christian Petersen officiated.

"LOST CONTINENT" IS BEING SOUGHT

The 26,000-Mile Bridge Between South America and Hawaii Is the Object Sought By Prof. W. A. Bryan.

Buenos Aires, Dec. 25.—Evidence of a lost continent in the Pacific ocean, 26,000-mile prehistoric "bridge" of land between South America and Hawaii, long submerged is being sought by an American scientist, William Adamson Bryan, professor of zoology and geology in the college of Hawaii, who left Honolulu last June on his remarkable quest.

Dr. Bryan, who came to Argentina by way of Mexico and the west coast of South America—where he studied volcanoes and Andean geology, is about to return to Valparaiso to board a ship for the little island of Juan Fernandez, three hundred miles out. The island is inhabited by a small colony of fishermen.

"In the Philadelphia Academy of Natural Science," the professor said, "I was surprised a year ago to discover certain fresh water mollusks from Juan Fernandez that were extraordinarily similar in their characteristics to mollusks in Hawaii. So I determined to visit the island to study those shells and its entire flora and fauna."

If the Juan Fernandez mollusks should prove to be closely allied with those of Hawaii, Dr. Bryan explained in an address here, it would prove that land connection had existed as the species must have traveled from Juan Fernandez to Hawaii or vice versa, by the river of the prehistoric continent. He hopes by visiting the island to find evidence of the date of submergence of the continent, its geology, its configuration and the direction in which the rivers ran. He is equipped with a diver's suit and other paraphernalia necessary for making scientific research.

Professor Bryan considers it not unlikely that the lost Pacific continent preceded that of South America in the dark ages of time.

American Inventive Genius.
Inventive genius, it would be universally admitted, is a characteristic American possession. Equally well known is the fact that the typical inventor, or at least a very common type of inventor, is often unable to obtain either the encouragement necessary to the completion of inventions or the money to develop them.

To prevent his wasting his time on useless ideas, the "national laboratory" foundation for invention and research is a logical product of these facts. The wonder is that it has not been established before. The laboratory, which was in the embryo stage for about two years, is to have its birth at a meeting in New York Jan. 9 which nearly 1,000 delegates are expected to attend. If there is any million-dollar philanthropist ready to help the thing along, it does not yet appear. Without disparaging such a source of encouragement to good causes it may be hoped that the 500 American leaders in science, research, invention and business, who are said to be behind the movement will be its real promoters. There ought to be enough co-operative spirit in this country to put through a great enterprise of this sort without reliance on the colossal private fortune of some retired captain of industry.—Springfield Republican.

CHEAPER THAN GASOLINE

And Easier on Motors Is the New Fuel for Motors.

New York, Dec. 26.—Successful tests of a motor fuel declared to be more economical than gasoline not only but also easier on motors, were announced today by Otto Fraeger, second assistant postmaster general in charge of the air mail service. The fuel consists of 36 parts of alcohol, 30 of gasoline, 19 of benzol, 7.5 of ether, and four of toluol. Ingredients making up the remaining one and one-half parts were not given.

Mail plane number 35 was used in the tests between New York and Washington. Another plane using high test aviation gasoline was used as a check. A saving of 3.9 gallons an hour in favor of the synthetic fuel was indicated. Economy of lubricating oil also was shown by the tests. After 125 hours in the air, the two motors were torn down and that in which the new fuel had been used was found in the condition, with a smaller deposit of carbon.

Business Using Chemists

Department stores and mail order houses are now installing chemical laboratories as part of their organization or are retaining chemists by the year, says the American Chemical Society News service. One large dry goods firm in St. Paul has a complete laboratory in full view of its customers where tests of all kinds of merchandise are conducted. The exact kind of dye in fabrics, the fibres which they contain, whether cotton or wool or silk, or mixtures of various threads, can thus be determined to the satisfaction of both merchant and consumer. By having the chemist continually checking up on the quality of products, large houses which sell merchandise by parcel post over wide areas can describe exactly everything enumerated in their catalogues. Thus they do not guarantee articles until they have had them thoroughly examined. As customers are so scattered over the country, accurate descriptions of merchandise prevent misunderstandings. The cutting down of unnecessary correspondence is one of the economies which has resulted from taking in a chemical partner.

The late Andrew Carnegie is credited with being the first steel manufacturer to employ a chemist to be always at the works and to make analyses of the materials used as well as to test the finished products. He was asked by another iron master how he could afford such an extravagance as having a chemist.

"Afford it, man!" exclaimed the Laird of Skibo. How can I afford not to have him?"
There are now large companies in the United States which employ from 50 to 40 chemists, many of whom are constantly working on research problems. The laboratory is a necessary adjunct of the factory, and every variety of foodstuffs, of general merchandise, and of fabrics of all kinds are constantly undergoing examination by the experts of the test tube.

Placing the Blame.
Whatever the president's faults, he brought back from Paris not merely the only treaty that could be framed, but a treaty which, as a whole, possessed extraordinary merit and gave bright promise of establishing just and peaceful relations between nations.
The simple truth is that the majority of the Senate, despite its desire to ratify the treaty without vital amendment, was induced by petty motives of personal animosity, offended vanity and pride and partisanship to toss it aside with brutal indifference to the welfare of the country and of the world. The people will have no trouble in fixing the blame for the present intolerable situation. It will not rest on the president, who submitted a good treaty, if it were done with bad grace, but on the senators who let petty passion and interests turn them from the path of wisdom and duty.—St. Louis Post-Dispatch.
